

But what occupies all minds is the fear that the fanaticism of certain men may mistake a duty, and attaching themselves to the heirs, I do not say of other persons' glory, for glory is a matter to which relationship gives no right, but to that fame which carries away so easily a name, and which may create what you and what I myself look on as a danger. Is such a danger real? I cannot say; it is not given to me more than to you to lift up the veil of the future; but permit me to say, that I am convinced that the heirs of whom I speak do not think of any attempt at usurpation; they have declared it themselves in this tribune, and I believe their words as honest men. No, they have no thought of that kind; but around them there are groups of men, such as are always ready to flatter about supposed ambitions, and who would be disposed to turn to the pursuit of low passions the greatest of our glories. But I say that these men would find themselves mistaken. To effect an 18th Brumaire, two things are necessary—long years of error behind, and in prospect the victories of Marquis and the Pyramids.—(Loud applause) But at present there is neither the one nor the other.—(Hear, hear.) The real danger of the Republic of February is its passage through the perilous reflux with follows all revolutions. I will not affirm that France is not a Republic, I am perfectly convinced of it, if you permit it—that matter before you one day, if you permit it—that France is not a Republic by her habits, if she is still monarchial by her vices, she is a Republic by her ideas.—(Movement.) Think of the monarchy falling to pieces before a tribune so far distant from that in which I now speak; think of the enthusiasm of the people saluting the magnificence of the inauguration of the Republic, which cost neither a regret nor a drop of blood, and which brought with it so many hopes to be realized, not all at once, but with the slow and steady maturity which effect great things in life. This inauguration captivated all hearts. I brought to this tribune the confidential declarations of the heads of the great monarchial parties, you would be convinced, as I am, that at that great period in which men elevate themselves above all personal considerations, there was in all minds but a single sentiment—a sincere, loyal, and complete acceptance of the Republic.—(Prolonged movement.) Every one contributed to it—some wished to exaggerate their Republican zeal, to carry it too far; others said to the people, Behold, the Republic is the accession of family ties and property—it is a way and violence pursuing the best citizens by false denunciations. From department to department, from one country district to another, these declarations were made; and thus it was, by unanimous assent that all enthusiasm was cooled, all affection for the Republic lessened.—And it is in such a state of things that we are recommended to declare to this country, in so great a proportion set against the Republic, that we have launched it from its own Republic, as for thirty-four years nineteen out of every twenty of the elections were banished under the monarch? If I wanted to throw discredit on the Republic I could not invent anything that could prove more fatal to it; but if I wanted to draw back to the heart of every citizen, I would say to him, "Reflect, judge, and choose yourself, amongst your fellow-citizens, him who inspires you with most confidence; he will not be your master, but he will be your highest personification, your head, your mediator, the regulator of your Republican sentiments, the guardian of your honor and your fortunes."—Extract from the Speech of De Lamartine.

DEATH OF THE BROTHER OF THE DUCKE OF WELLINGTON.—About 9 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 31, the Hon. and Rev. General Valentin Wellesley, D. D., expired at his house in the College, Durham. The hon. and Rev. gentleman had for some time past been in a feeble and gradually sinking state. By his death the rectory of Bishopwearmouth and a canonry in the church of Durham will become vacant. It is supposed that the rectory of Bishopwearmouth will now be divided into four districts—St. Thomas's Chapel, South Hill, Ryhope, and Bishopwearmouth. The presentation is in the hands of the Bishop of the diocese. We believe it is not definitely known whether or not the canonry will be filled up. The presentation to this also is in the hands of the Bishop. The venerable deceased was greatly respected by all classes of the community for his kind and conciliatory manners, and the unvarying benevolence of his disposition. He was born on the 7th of Dec. 1778, and was consequently in the 71st year of his age. On the 21 of June, 1802, he married the Lady Emily Mary Cadogan, eldest daughter of Charles Sloane, first Earl of Cadogan, by whom he had issue four sons and two daughters. The deceased was the fourth son of the Duke of Wellington, and a younger brother of the Duke of Wellington.

PARIS AND LYONS, AND FRENCH FINANCE.—One would hardly imagine there could exist the want of financial tact disclosed by the following circumstance, for the truth of which we pledge ourselves. A shareholder in the above company had agreed to pay up the whole of his shares, according to the terms of the French Circular, and take the five per cent. rent. Fifty francs per share were paid on the 5th inst., and the remaining 300 per share are to be paid by four equal instalments, at intervals of three months; the shareholder offered to pay up the whole at once if they would allow him discount, which, of course, would be six months' interest. The French Government refused the discount, he offered to accept the money. Now, had the Government acceded to the offer, it would have allowed six months' interest, and might have obtained 12, or double, for the whole sum immediately. Would such a thing be done in England? We think they are a little better financiers here, but such are our neighbours the French.—Herapath's Journal.

WEALTH OF THE UNITED STATES.—The report of the Patent Office recently made, presents interesting statistics relative to the wealth of the United States. The population of the United States is now at 30,744,000, and the aggregate of personal and real property estimated at $3,294,570,000 dollars. New York is the richest State, her property being 912,000,000 dollars. Pennsylvania next, 850,000,000; then Ohio, 746,000,000; then Virginia, 508,000,000. The remainder of the States as follows: Indiana, 384,000,000; Tennessee, 350,000,000; Kentucky, 342,000,000; Massachusetts, 340,000,000; Illinois, 294,000,000; Alabama, 276,000,000; Mississippi, 256,000,000; South Carolina, 242,000,000; Missouri, 240,000,000; Maine, 240,000,000; Maryland, 190,000,000; Louisiana, 180,000,000; New Jersey, 167,000,000; Michigan, 148,000,000; Connecticut, 132,000,000; Vermont, 120,000,000; New Hampshire, 120,000,000; Arkansas, 60,000,000; Texas, 56,000,000; Iowa, 52,000,000; Rhode Island, 52,000,000; Wisconsin, 36,000,000; Delaware, 32,000,000; Florida, 30,000,000; District of Columbia, 18,000,000; Oregon, 8,000,000.—N. Y. Paper.

A PROPHECY FET BY LOUIS PHILIPPE.—A few years ago a distinguished English nobleman had the honour of dining with the King in the unceremonious manner in which he declined to withdraw himself from the trammels of state, the conversation was carried on as if between two equals, and his Majesty, inter alia, remarked that "he was the only sovereign now in Europe fit to fill a throne." The English nobleman, somewhat staggered by this piece of opinion, muttered out some trite compliments to the great talent for government which his entertained had always displayed, &c., and the King burst out into a fit of laughter, and exclaimed, "No, no, that is not what I say, but I am at such discount in our days, that I am saying what I say; and I am the only monarch who has chosen his own throne, and could do it again."

ADDRESS EVERY MAN BY HIS NAME.—And here may be offered a further friendly admonition. Upon whatever occasion, public or private, the foremost man be addressed, let him be that, let some kind or encouraging epithet be adopted. The appellation of "my man" can offend no man, whilst the too-frequently applied epithet, "You, sir," is obnoxious to the meanest citizen. Not that the vulgar practice of courting popularity is here advocated. Affected humility may be said to be meanness personified; whilst low familiarities debase, and at once destroy every feeling of respect. The instant an officer descends to be familiar with the men, his authority sinks—neither can he expect or exact obedience. A moral may be found in the following anecdote.—When the author served with the late Lord Collingwood, a lieutenant of his Majesty's ship C— had the presumption, in the presence of the admiral, to apply the phrase "You, sir," to one of the afterguards on the quarter-deck. The admiral reiterated the offensive appellation, "You, sir—You, sir." The lieutenant, at a loss for the admiral's meaning, approached his superior, hat in hand. "You, sir!" continued the admiral, emphatically repeating the obnoxious phrase, as he stared the lieutenant full in the face—How do you, sir, like to be you, lieutenant? A man has a name as well as you, lieutenant. The author was a boy at the time, but from that period to the present he has invariably forgotten to "you-sir" a man.—Glascock's Naval Officer's Manual.

VEGETABLE INSTINCT.—If a pan of water be placed within six inches of either side of the stem of a young pumpkin or vegetable marrow, it will in the course of the night approach it, and will be found in the morning with one of its leaves floating on the water. This experiment may be continued nightly until the plant begins to fruit. If a prop be placed within six inches of a young convolvulus, or scarlet runner, it will find it, although the prop may be shifted daily. If, after it has twined some distance up the prop, it is unwound and twined in the opposite direction, it will return to its original position. If two of these plants grow near each other, and have no stake around which they can entwine, one of them will alter the direction of its spiral, and they will twine round each other. Duhamel placed some kidney beans in a cylinder of moist earth; after a short time they commenced to germinate, of course sending the plume upwards to the light, and the root down in the soil. After a few days the cylinder was turned one-fourth round, and again and again this was repeated, until an entire revolution of the cylinder was completed. The beans were then taken out of the earth, and it was found that both the plume and radicle had bent to accommodate themselves to every revolution, and the one in its efforts to ascend perpendicularly, and the other to descend, they had formed a perfect spiral. But although the natural tendency of the roots is downwards, if the soil beneath be dry, and any damp substance above, the roots will ascend to reach it.—Farmer's Magazine.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Some very interesting and important experiments have been exhibited in the great room of the Hanover Square Rooms to prove the power and efficacy of Electric Light, for which Mr. W. E. Stait, the inventor, has taken out a patent. The light is not a flame, but an incandescent light; it resembles a spark of the most brilliant and vivid fire, about the size, or rather less, than the burner of a common argand lamp. There is no combustion, nor will the light produce combustion by coming in contact with combustible substances. The power is immense; resembling day or sun light, and obscuring the light of candles in the manner that rays of daylight obscure them. The great room was illuminated by the operation. The light is generated or produced by a battery of 44 plates, of the dimension of 14 square yards. It is understood to be self-regulating, and to be so cheap that any person can afford to pay for it—a rough calculation is that it supplies a light equal to that of a hundred candles, for an hour, at one penny.

PROTEST.

BEFORE the undersigned, principal Notary Public for the Hawaiian Islands, keeping his office at the village of Honolulu, Island of Oahu, on this 7th day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and forty nine, personally came and appeared, William Webster, George Bowles, Jas. G. Parker, and Edmond Biot, master and owners of the schooner "Papete," and declared, and requested the undersigned to note for them, the following words, to wit:

"We sailed from Tahiti in the schooner Papete, under the Protectorate flag of Tahiti, Biot, master, bound for California by the way of the Islands of Huahine, Raiatea, and Oahu. On our arrival at Honolulu, it was agreed between the owners of the vessel and Captain Biot, that on account of his not speaking the English language sufficiently well to carry on the ship's duty as master, that the command should be given up to Captain George Bowles, one of the owners of the vessel. A written agreement was entered into to that effect, and duly executed before the Governor of Huahine, and Captain Biot, by mutual consent of all the parties, proceeded on the voyage in the vessel as a passenger. That on our arrival in the Port of Honolulu, Captain Bowles entered the vessel in the usual way at the Custom House, and lodged his Register and papers in the hands of the French Consul, M. Dillon. That on the third of this present month, April, the vessel was ready for sea and Captain Bowles applied to said Consul for the ship's papers, which the Consul refused to give up, until he got guarantee for the payment of all the expenses of the Cook of the Papete, until his departure from Honolulu, and the price of his passage to California, in consequence of a flogging which was inflicted upon the said Cook by one of the passengers, (William Webster) notwithstanding the said passenger informed him, M. Dillon, that he had left the vessel and would remain here and pay any damages that a court of appeal might decide he was bound to pay on account of the Cook; that the master and owners of the vessel have done all in their power to arrange the matter amicably with the Consul of France; that Captain Bowles wrote to the Consul, asking him to surrender the ship's papers, which he refused in a written reply to do; that the master and owners wrote and addressed another letter to the Consul asking again for the vessel's papers which he again refused; that they then called at the French Consulate, and that immediately on entering the office, the Consul commenced threatening them, and that his whole conduct was abrupt and highly offensive; that he ordered Captain Bowles to leave his office and told him not to come near him again; that there are a number of passengers on board of the Papete of different nations, some of whom are troublesome characters and might endanger the safety of the remaining passengers, and the vessel, if suffered to proceed further in her; that upon expressing to the Consul their wish to put one of these characters in particular out of the vessel in this port, he refused to sanction it, though having before him satisfactory evidence that they had only received from said passenger the price of his passage to this (Honolulu) place; that by the unreasonable and as they believe illegal exactions of the said Consul, they are compelled to retain on board the vessel, from this time forth, all passengers, men who they have every reason to fear, will cause a mutiny before the vessel reaches the coast; that the Consul of France did in his hearing in his own office advise the steersman passengers to take by force what provisions, &c. that they required when at sea, that they were the strongest party and had a right to do so; that they believe he, the Consul of France, has been actuated by some private motive of his own, in detaining the vessel's papers; that on the morning of the 6th instant, Capt. Biot called and asked for the ship's papers, which the Consul of France refused to surrender without the guarantee which he is the only one whom the Consul is willing to acknowledge as the Captain of the vessel."

Wherefore they the undersigned declarants make this their solemn protest against the said Consul of France and his before recited acts, holding him and the Government of France responsible for all the damages, costs and charges that may ensue to the parties in interest, by reason thereof. In testimony whereof, I have caused the said declarants to subscribe their names hereto in my presence, and have also hereto affixed my official seal this day and year above written. [L. S.]

W. M. WEBSTER, Owner. GEORGE BOWLES, Master and owner. JAS. PARKER, Owner. EDMOND BIOT, late Master. Done in my presence.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of the original on file in the archives of this office. Witness my hand and official seal this 7th day of April, Anno Domini, 1849.
